USE OF WEB TECHNOLOGIES

Cookies

A cookie is a small text file that is stored on a user's computer for record keeping purposes. We use cookies on the Site. We link the information we store in cookies to personally identifiable information that you submit while on the Site. We use both session ID cookies and persistent cookies. A session ID cookie expires when a browser is closed. A persistent cookie remains on your hard drive for an extended period of time. Persistent cookies also enable us to track and target the interests of our users to enhance the experience on the Site. You can remove the persistent cookies by following the directions provided in your internet browser's "help" file. If you reject cookies, you can still use the Site but your ability to use particular areas of the Site will be limited.

Tracking Pixels/ Web Beacons

We employ a software technology called tracking pixels (a/k/a web beacons/web bugs/clear gifs) that enables us to better manage the content on the Site by informing us what content is effective. Tracking pixels are tiny graphics with a unique identifier, similar in function to cookies, and are used to track the online movements of visitors to a website. In contrast to cookies, which are stored on a user's computer hard drive, tracking pixels are embedded invisibly on website pages and are about the size of the period at the end of a sentence. We do not tie the information gathered by tracking pixels to your personally identifiable information.

We use tracking pixels in our HTML-based emails to let us know which emails have been opened by recipients. This allows us to gauge the effectiveness of certain communications and the effectiveness of our marketing campaigns. If you would like to opt-out of these emails, please see the "Opting Out" section of this Privacy Policy below.

Log Files

As is true of most websites, we gather information automatically and store it in log files. This information includes internet protocol (IP) addresses, browser type, internet service provider (ISP), referring/exit pages, operating system, date/time stamp and clickstream data. We use this information, which does not identify individual users, to analyze trends, to administer the Site, to track the movements of users around the Site and to gather demographic information about our user base as a whole.

What types of cookies and other Web Technologies do we use and how do we use them?

THIRD PARTY AD SERVER NETWORKS

Our Site uses third parties such as network advertisers to serve advertisements on our Site and traffic measurement services to analyze traffic on our Site. Network advertisers are third parties that display advertisements based on your visits to our Site and other websites you have visited. Third party ad serving enables us to target advertisements to you. Our Site’s third party ad network providers, the advertisers, the sponsors and/or traffic measurement services can themselves set and access their own cookies and other technologies on your computer and track certain behavioral information regarding users of your computer via an IP address or other device identifier. These third party cookies and other technologies are set to, among other things: (a) help deliver tailored advertisements to you; (b) prevent you from seeing the same advertisements too many times; and (c) understand the usefulness to you of the advertisements that have been delivered to you. Note that any images (or any other parts of a web page) served by third parties in association with third party cookies can serve as web beacons, which enable third parties to carry out the previously described activities. Third party cookies, web beacons and other third party technologies are governed by each third party’s specific privacy policy, not this one.
